Local business coach joins advisory team of Gazelles International

NEW YORK—Feb. 1, 2011— New York metropolitan area executive coach and business consultant Mark Green joined the advisory team of Gazelles International, a premiere international executive education and coaching association, this week.

“Mark has shown himself to be an excellent business coach and wonderful contributor to our coaching association, keeping with our core values and standards of excellence,” said Keith Cupp, president and head coach of Gazelles International. “Mark’s particular knowledge of social media will be an asset to other Gazelles International coaches, as well as his peer guidance and counsel in helping new coaches grow and thrive in the Gazelles International business model.”

Green has led multiple clients and workshops in the Four Decisions™ growth concepts, based on the best-selling book “Mastering the Rockefeller Habits” by Gazelles International founder Verne Harnish. Green has also achieved Gazelles International certification, based on his study and mastery of the Four Decisions™ content, application of best practices, and ongoing education by the world’s top thought leaders such as Jim Collins and Patrick Lencioni.

Green is the founder and president of Performance Dynamics Group, a business coaching and consulting company that offers a variety of services to executives in the New York metropolitan area, including strategic planning, executive coaching, and professional development. Green has more than 21 years of experience working with companies from a wide array of industries.
